Thursday 11 April 2013

Bridgwater College, in partnership with QuEST Global UK, scooped the Large Employer of the Year award at the 2013 Grow Somerset Talent Apprenticeship ceremony last month.

QuEST and the College have together developed an apprenticeship programme, the Apprenticeship in Engineering, that aims to maximise employees' potential by developing their skills and knowledge in design and advanced manufacturing, up to and including higher education. The partnership won the award due to their joint commitment towards investing in the future of both the business and the apprentices via a high quality training package.

The current first year apprentices with Programme Manager, Maurice Porter and Training Officer, Gene Smith.

Paul Goss, Section Leader for Engineering Electronics said:

“Winning this award is a fantastic achievement for QuEST Global and the College’s Engineering Department. The award recognises QuEST’s commitment to high quality apprentice training and we are pleased to be working so closely with such an outstanding employer.”
